BUSINESS IS BETTER IN WESTERN STATES

Monthly Review of Federal Reserve Agent Points to Prosperous Conditions

By ELLIS H. MARTIN
For International News Service.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—Business on the Pacific coast has taken a turn for the better.

A moderate increase in activity was recorded in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district during July, following four months of decline, John Perrin, chairman of the board and federal reserve agent, announced today in his monthly review of conditions.

Prices Are Rising
Wider distribution of goods at wholesale and retail has been accompanied by rising commodity prices, Chairman Perrin reported, and more recently productive industry has increased in response to strengthening demand and price advances. Bank credit has continued plentiful and interest rates relatively low, lowering of the federal reserve discount rate to 3½ per cent being one of the features of this month.

Of particular importance to the district, according to the report, was the movement upward of commodity prices at wholesale, reversing a downward trend which had continued since last February. Increase in prices of grains, wool, non-ferrous metals and lumber contributed to improved conditions throughout the district.

Increase Production
Industrial production schedules were increased during the latter part of July and early part of August, the report indicates, and a significant increase in the number of building permits issued in twenty cities was reported in July, as compared to June. In the lumber industry shipments increased in comparison with previous months.

ADMITTS SHARE IN $2,000,000 THEFT

Postoffice Inspector Held As Brains of Roundout Mail Robbery

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—William F. Fahy, postoffice inspector held as the "brains" of the $2,000,000 roundout mail robbery, has confessed to complicity in the crime, Chief Postal Inspector C. H. Claraham of New York, stated today.

Fahy insists he had no bad intent in becoming mixed up in the job, Mr. Claraham said. He refused to go into details of the alleged character of Fahy's alleged participation in the crime.

According to Chief Inspector Claraham, who is in charge of the investigation that led to Fahy's arrest, the evidence against the latter is "absolute."

Trace Other Thefts
"You may be sure the postoffice authorities would not have arrested and charged Fahy unless they knew they had the goods on him," he said.

"We are convinced from the evidence we have obtained that the same brain that planned the roundout robbery schemed many others in this part of the country."

Master Mind Shown
"We are convinced, also, that Fahy framed 'Big Tim' Murphy in the union station robbery and government inspectors now en route to Leavenworth will try to get Murphy to tell all he knew about the men higher up."

Other smaller robberies which may be hooked up with the raids which postal inspectors say show the hall mark of the same master crook's handiwork were in Harvey, Ill.; Whiting, Elkhart and East Chicago, Ind., and St. Louis.

In every instance the bandits have struck at a strategic time, when rich and heavy shipments of currency or negotiable bonds were in transit and have lost no time in finding the loot they sought.

Prince Trains for American Trip In Ship's Gymnasium

ON BOARD THE LINER BERENGARIA, Aug. 27.—(By Wire)—The Prince of Wales is going to be in the pink of physical condition when he reaches New York Thursday night or Friday morning. After a strenuous "work out" in the ship's gymnasium today he tips the scales at a fraction under 135 pounds and was as hard as nails.

His athletic activity is diversified and his prowess has aroused the admiration of the gymnasium attendants. At first the prince avoided the main salon during the evening's dancing, but as the ship nears New York he is showing more and more interest in this social pastime.

SEWER BOND BIDS ARE ASKED

Council Passes Resolution Ordering Advertising of $652,000 Issue

A resolution ordering the city clerk to advertise the sale of $652,000 worth of the $1,600,000 sewer bonds was adopted this morning by the Glendale City Council, on motion of Councilman C. E. Kimlin and second of Councilman S. A. Davis. Councilman Asa Hall voted "no" on the resolution, standing by his contention of Monday's council meeting that an even issue of $640,000 would bring a better price.

Following the Monday session, Ray L. Morrow, city attorney, took up the suggestion of Councilman Hall with O'Melveny, Milliken, Tuller and McNeil, bond attorneys retained by the city of Glendale, to pass on the validity of the proposed issue. He reported back this morning in the whole that these attorneys had reported against Councilman Hall's suggestion.

Following is the resolution in full: "Resolved, By the council of the city of Glendale, that the city clerk be and hereby is instructed and directed to advertise the sale of 652 of the 1924 sewer bonds, in accordance with the attached notice, by publishing said notice two times in The Glendale Evening News, a daily newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in said city, and the official newspaper of said city."

In accordance with the terms of the above resolution, notice of the sale of 652 of these bonds, each of $1000 denomination, appears elsewhere in today's issue of The Glendale Evening News. The notice states that up to 10 o'clock the morning of Thursday, September 11, sealed bids for the purchase of the above $652,000 worth of sewer bonds will be received by the Glendale City Council, where.

Hope for Recovery Of Norman Selby's Mother Abandoned

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—Hope for the recovery of Mrs. Mary Selby, aged mother of "Kid" McCoy, held in jail here for the murder of Mrs. Teresa Mors, was abandoned by her physicians today.

Mrs. Selby, stricken shortly after she learned of her son's arrest, is at the point of death, it was said.

"It grieves me far more than the fact I'm accused of murder," said McCoy, when informed of his mother's condition.

The former pugilist will appear tomorrow to plead to indictments charging him with murder, shooting and wounding three persons, and robbing four others. He will plead not guilty to all charges, according to his attorney, E. L. Davis.

Dissolution of Reichstag May End Dawes Row

German Nationalists Holding Balance of Power Are Menace to Plans

By S. D. WYER
For International News Service.
BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Possibility of the dissolution of the Reichstag as a result of the fight over ratification of the Dawes reparations plan grew stronger today.

Leaders of the German nationalists, who hold the balance of power in the Reichstag, threaten to vote against ratification unless the London pact is substantially changed.

The inter-party fight over the Dawes plan reached its climax with dissensions in the ranks of the coalition parties. The right wing is proposing amendments in the covering note while the left wing is violently opposing any changes.

Seek Coalition
It is an open secret that the German nationalists are striving for national authority through entrance of the coalition and the possession of important posts in the cabinet. They would be willing to support the bills ratifying and executing the Dawes plan if assured a more conservative course in internal affairs.

Fervent political bargaining is progressing behind the scenes. The Dawes plan bills were to be called up for second reading this afternoon.

Sam Davis Disagrees With Mayor on Shows

In Council session this morning Mayor Spencer Robinson held forth on the matter of tent shows, declaring a license fee of $50 a day should be charged for the operation of such amusements.

To which Councilman Sam Davis replied: "You are spouting motion picture propaganda."

"Oh, no I'm not," denied Mayor Robinson. "I'm merely giving the result of my own observations."

"You may not know it is motion picture propaganda," Councilman Davis retorted, "but it is, just the same. It rises up like a vapor and you breathe it without thinking."

BLACKMAIL LETTER, SAID

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—Guillermo Hidalgo, 13, is a sadder but wiser boy today following frustration by federal authorities of a plot by which the youth is alleged to have sought to blackmail Douglas Fairbanks, actor.

Hidalgo was given a severe lecture and released on probation after being accused of writing a letter to Fairbanks demanding money.

Royal Visitor to Be President's Guest at Lunch On Arrival at Washington Saturday; Capital to Be Decked with Bunting

By ROBERTA V. BRADSHAW
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Washington is all set for the visit of the Prince of Wales, who is due to arrive at the capital by special train, a little after noon next Saturday.

The Prince will be met at the Union Station by the President's car and then he will proceed to the White House where, in informal fashion, he will have luncheon, en famille, with the President and Mrs. Coolidge. Possibly, after the luncheon, which is to be very strictly confined to the members of the White House family, a few officials may be received, but this is uncertain at the moment. Before nightfall, his Royal Highness will be speeding back to New York aboard his special train.

Although he arrives on American soil as the Prince of Wales, the fact that he is solely and simply the private and personal guest of the President and Mrs. Coolidge is stressed on all sides. On this account, there will be no ceremony, no salutes, no parades and no formal escort.

Will Greet Prince
As the president's personal representative, the assistant secretary of state, J. Butler Wright, accompanied by the president's military aide, Major Oscar N. Solbert, U. S. A., will be members of a small group, including the ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Esme Howard, and members of the embassy staff, who will greet the prince when the Berengaria comes to quarantine on Friday afternoon.

In company with the British ambassador the prince, upon disembarking, will immediately proceed to the home of James A. Burden, on Long Island, which has been placed at his disposal during his sojourn in the United States. The assistant secretary of state and Major Solbert remain in New York and on Saturday will accompany the prince on the return journey to Washington. They will also accompany him on the return journey to New York.

By a happy coincidence, Mr. Wright was counselor of the

Seek Three Children Missing From Home

Two little girls, aged 7 and 11 years, and a little boy of 5, all the eldest of Mrs. Marquette of 114 East Montrose avenue, La Crescenta, have been missing since 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when they wandered away from the corner of Glendale avenue and Verdugo road, or were kidnapped.

The frantic mother has reported their absence to the Glendale police department and every effort is being made to locate them, states Captain William A. Loving. The little girls wore gingham dresses, with no stockings, hats or coats, according to the mother, while the little boy was dressed in overalls.

Elsinore's Water Mains Polluted by Chemical, Report

ELSINORE, Cal., Aug. 27.—An exhaustive investigation was ordered here today, following the sensational disclosure by city officials that two three-inch water mains on a business street had been stuffed with newspapers filled with a chemical. Three persons were made violently ill by drinking water from the mains.

The tampering with the water pipes was discovered where private mains join the city mains. It was asserted by officials, who charged the work was done in an attempt to discredit the city's water supply or by persons opposed to the development of the new district.

A reward of $500 was offered by the officials for information leading to the arrest of persons who stuffed the water pipes.

WRIGHT LEADS IN LOCAL SUPERVISORIAL CONTEST; LINEBERGER WILL HAVE OPPONENT, RESULTS SHOW

Glendale Electorate Casts Total of 4548 Votes In 36 Precincts, For Which Unofficial Complete Returns Are Given

By A. S. HALL
Of The Evening News Staff.

Glendale voters, in a comparatively light vote yesterday at the primary election, cast 4548 ballots, placed Judge John M. York at the head of the local ticket in the race for judge of the Superior court, gave District Attorney Asa Keyes a majority of 1000 votes over Caryl M. Sheldon, and kept Supervisor Henry W. Wright's majority over the combined vote of his opponents down to nineteen votes in the thirty-six complete precincts.

The Republican ballots constituted the majority of votes cast yesterday, according to unofficial figures furnished by the judges and clerks of election. There were 3,332 Republican ballots cast. Other party designation were: Democrats, 723; Prohibitionists, 108; Socialist, 11, and Non-Partisans, 374.

Weller Scores High
Frank C. Weller, Glendalian who is now a member of the assembly from the Sixty-first district, and is running for re-election, received the loyal support of Glendale voters, when he was given a majority of 2000 votes over Edward Ivens Bryant.

Walter F. Lineberger, Republican congressman from the Ninth district, who is a candidate to succeed himself, had practically no opposition in Glendale, polling 2709 votes. A few scattering votes were cast for C. H. Randall as candidate for representative in Congress from the Ninth district, but the total Republican vote for Randall was less than 100, according to unofficial figures.

Hartley Shaw, incumbent and candidate for a place on the Superior court bench, ran second in this city to Judge York in the

LATEST RETURNS FROM L.A. COUNTY

District Attorney Is Victor Over Sheldon; Weller To Go on Ticket

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—Asa Keyes was elected district attorney in yesterday's election by a vote of more than two to one over C. M. Sheldon, it was revealed by the tabulation of ever increasing returns flooding into the county registrar's office this afternoon.

Frank C. Weller, incumbent, and administration member of the state legislature, was conceded an easy victory for assemblyman in yesterday's election by a vote of more than two to one over C. M. Sheldon, it was revealed by the tabulation of ever increasing returns flooding into the county registrar's office this afternoon.

On the Democratic ticket C. H. Randall got twenty-seven votes for congressman from the Ninth district, and John B. Coulston got thirty-four votes for delegate to the state convention. Randall also polled seven votes for congressman on the Prohibition ticket.

Lineberger Unopposed
Walter F. Lineberger, incumbent, was without opposition in the Republican race for Congress, although it was believed Charles H. Randall would score sufficiently to be the candidate of the Democratic and Prohibition parties.

This city's $15,000,000 power bonds received a mammoth vote of approval. The fight between Criswell and Fredericks for Congress from the Tenth district still is in the lap of the gods, with Criswell gaining.

Los Angeles county saw Richardson forces score a decisive victory when three of five senators and nine of the assemblymen favorable to the administration were assured election in November by yesterday's pluralities.

Another attack will be made on the sealed reports of precinct election clerks at 5:30 p. m. by the county auditor's office, which is handling the ballots.

BOTH SIDES CLAIMING VICTORY

Wage Bitter Battle at Polls Throughout State for 1925 Supremacy

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—With many of the eighty assembly districts of the state still in doubt, indications at noon today were that anti-administration forces will control that body in the next session of the legislature.

Administration forces declared that gains in several districts would offset the sweeping victory of the anti-administration forces in San Francisco where they carried the three senatorial posts and 12 of the 13 assembly districts.

Governor Richardson probably will retain control of the Senate on the face of returns from the twenty-odd numbered senatorial districts in which primaries were held.

Capital Carried
Administration forces were victorious in Los Angeles, naming three of the five senators and nine of the assemblymen. Anti-administration forces named three assemblymen and three are in doubt.

In the state capital anti-administration forces were successful. Senator J. M. Inman being returned, Assemblyman Percy West renominated and J. W. Johnson, administration adherent, defeated by Roy J. Nielson. Anti-administration victories were claimed today in Marin, Contra Costa, Humboldt, San Joaquin, Fresno and Kern.

Contest Is Close
In Alameda administration forces pulled out ahead, although the result was split. In Santa Cruz county administration forces were successful, and in Tulare county where Governor Richardson made a personal campaign, returns indicated that his candidates

$3,584 for Advertising Appropriated by City

The Glendale City Council this morning appropriated $3584 from the advertising fund for advertisements in the Los Angeles Times, Los Angeles Examiner and Christian Science Monitor, setting forth the advantages of this city. The council also appropriated $250 from this fund to advertise Glendale at the forthcoming convention of the California Real Estate association, to be held at Pasadena. Alhambra has appropriated $1,500 for this purpose, Mayor Spencer Robinson declared.

The council appropriated $550.12 from the reserve fund, to pay a bill presented by the Pacific Electric company, for a wig-wag erected at Gardena avenue. An ordinance was introduced ordering the widening of Tyler street from Palmer avenue to Max street.

WINTER DRESS TO BE STAIID, SOMBRE

Straight, Narrow Frocks for Milady Are Shown In Exclusive Shops

By AILEEN LAMONT
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924
NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Actions speak louder than clothes. At least they can be counted on to do so in the case of the younger set this fall. Debutantes, subdebs and the park or boulevard stroller will have to draw attention to themselves by bizarre actions rather than dress for the coverings which will protect them from the winter blasts and the indecent exposure ordinances will be staid and sombre.
Simplicity is the dominant note in outer garments now being assembled by the college girls and younger members of society, no matter how much sophistication they may cover. Dresses are as straight and narrow as the path so few men seem able to tread. The colors chosen are more staid than at any time this year. And eccentricities of design are remarkable for their absence.

Colors Are Few
Colors are not only of a more sombre tone but they are fewer in number. This is not a mere temporary trend. It can be counted on to continue. Manufacturers, designers and weavers are determined to standardize the charts and to cease production of the multiplicity of tints which run the scale in every basic color.
The frocks now being produced for the fall wardrobe of the younger girls are short and they are so narrow that they appear even shorter than they are. The vogue for suits is being emphasized and has been encouraged by the beautiful soft fabrics recently offered by the looms of England, Scotland and America. These cloths which contain in their invisible plaids all the hazy beauty of an autumn morning are converted into coats and skirts of utmost simplicity of line, perfectly plain in the back and usually without a belt.

Double-Breasted Coat
The double-breasted coat is finding many advocates. Much progress has been made in waterproofing tweeds and chevrons without stiffening or hardening fabric that many of the autumn suits will offer protection against the downpours which flood the football campuses.
Many of these coats are collared in fur, the darker brown pelts being used almost exclusively, but this does not mean the discarding of the scarf. In fact, scarfs that will be larger, longer and more brilliant than ever, but they are jacketed so that all that appears is the tight wrapping at the neck and between the lapels and broad and flaring below the coat hem.

WORK STARTS ON BOULEVARD SOON

Public Works Committee to Insist on Immediate Activity on Job

LANKERSHIM, Aug. 27.—Dirt should fly on the new Calhoun Pass boulevard within a few days. The Public Works committee of the Los Angeles City Council having stipulated that the work start at once, and that DeWitt Reburn, engineer in charge of the grading on Mulholland drive, do the work, under a force account agreement.
The committee had insisted that the county supervisors certify to the availability of the $200,000 appropriation and that the engineer submit an estimate of cost.

Submits Estimate
The county has complied with this demand, and Engineer Reburn has placed before the committee an estimate which calls for the removal of 135,000 yards of dirt at a cost of 60 cents a yard. This cost will bring the expense of grading well within the contemplated outlay. Out of the appropriation must also come a concrete bridge to be constructed at the site of the old Indian Village and the paving of thirty-five feet of street.

The remainder of the seventy feet of paving will come with the appropriation of the $100,000 the county supervisors next August. The money for the project is coming from the state allotment of the auto tax.

Series of Parks
Six parks of more than 100 acres each at intervals of five miles along the Mulholland drive is the latest plan in the development of the hilltop region as a beautiful residential section.
Van Griffith, park commissioner; John R. Prince, assistant city engineer; D. L. Reburn, construction engineer, and G. Gordon Whitall, of the City Planning commission, look with considerable favor upon the plan, and their support in putting over hilltop system of parks is assured. Several sites have already been proposed, and include property near the Boy Scouts' camp, on the highway.

COMMENT That's All

Today We Talk of Votes Many Failed to Ballot Two Small Large Items California Doesn't Suffer

By Gil A. Cowan

Another primary election has passed and with it goes victory and defeat. But so close is the race in several contests that days may pass before the successful candidates are announced.
In Los Angeles John D. Fredericks is being led a merry pace by Ralph Criswell for the Republican congressional nomination in the tenth district which, when won, virtually means election.
The local supervisorial contest went as expected, Wright leading. Manchester second and Pife following. It may be that Manchester will have the opportunity to oppose the incumbent in the November election.

The easy victory of Keyes for district attorney was an early conclusion as he had both organization and experience behind him and was opposed by a none too strong candidate.
Local Republican office-seekers were defeated. Congressman Lindeberger and Assemblyman Weller having the confidence of their party. But the former will face Charles H. Randall and Lewis M. Head in November.

Now for a few comments on subjects other than the persons concerned in yesterday's election. The light vote cast in Glendale was somewhat of a disgrace. No more so perhaps than in other communities and it likely lagged because of the lack of any consequential issues.

Worse than the light vote, however, was the lack of effort on the part of many who did take the trouble to vote—writing in Republican committeemen on Democratic ballots, not to mention many other little things.
Also, there was an absolute lack of understanding that the offices of supervisor, district attorney and judiciary are not partisan and nowise concerned with the political parties. They are listed on the Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and Socialist ticket alike for convenience sake.

Two short items in yesterday's edition of The Glendale Evening News will of everybody's attention.
First, one of the largest furniture manufacturers in America, and not a promoter, is looking for a location in this vicinity. He has several plants operating in the middle-west, east and Canada. The fact that he considers Glendale in a casual manner should excite the interest of the community.
Second, the Union Pacific revealed that it will build a station here costing $160,000, which is quite some little expenditure and represents the railroad's faith in this, "the fastest growing city in America."

One good turn deserves another and everywhere you turn in Glendale there is something good in sight, by golly.

The Glendale Evening News threw a crew of reporters into all night service to give this city a complete recapitulation of yesterday's balloting.
Editors remained at their desks the whole night through, three young men in motor cars brought in the results until 8 o'clock this morning. Special reports from Los Angeles were received during the evening. Hundreds of people availed themselves of The Glendale News information service long after others had failed in the attempt to deliver election returns.

In Los Angeles the morning newspapers promoted what might be termed a "close corporation" for the obtaining and dissemination of results of the balloting. They made use of the county registrar's machinery, of course, paying therefor, but they also made difficult the work of ascertaining what had happened in those districts which overlap in Los Angeles, such as the Fifth supervisorial, Ninth congressional, Sixty-first assembly, etc. At the same time they are glad for the local newspaper's co-operation with their correspondents.

It is said the evening papers were frozen out. Well, The Glendale Evening News was not frozen in the least, but next election the writer would advise the Times, Examiner and Illustrated News to "make it easy on yourselves." Out of town publishers will be wised up to conditions.

In the Des Moines, Ia., Register a letter to the editor recently signed by one "L. Jones" under Los Angeles date listed of "the boom busting in southern California."

If such be the fact, that is real news which should be played with headlines all over the yellow sheets of the east and middle west. However, the editors, despite the fact they print Jones' letter, know contrariwise. All they have to do is read a few facts and figures.
More than that, if they were to come to the southland through the eyes of the "L. Jones" and his ilk are pure, unadulterated liars whom the Lord lets live here for no cause at all.

It does not hurt southern California for Jones to advise Iowa people to stay away, for the majority of people coming here are from New York, Illinois, Massachusetts and other states where artisans and capitalists and professional people are to be recruited to increase the southland's population.

But the propaganda spread by Mr. Jones may cost a lot of Iowans good homes here if they believe him. Here's hoping they do not.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—Angered by John C. Howard's statement in connection with their marital troubles that he never laid a hand on her, dainty Ora Carew, screen and vaudeville star, displayed documents purporting to prove that the young son of the millionaire "salad dressing king" once admitted having struck her so sharply that he broke her nose.
Howard's name, together with his wife's, is signed to a "confession" of the nose-breaking incident which is supported by the statement of a Hollywood physician certifying that "on July 21, 1923, Mrs. Ora Howard was seen by me and found to have suffered a fracture of the nasal bones. The fracture included also a septal cartilage."

Other instances of physical violence are listed in the alleged joint statement in which the actress agrees to continue as Howard's wife "upon his promise to not in any manner repeat any of the matters referred to."

Pathetic notes reflecting harsh domestic strife, said to have been written by Howard after two attempts at suicide were also brought forward by the reproachful Ora, who further disinterred significant letters written by Howard to his parents.
One of these stated that Howard had signed his wife's name to a thousand dollar note and that he loved her, but had abused her. Another of the notes is said to have been written after he is alleged to have taken veronal in Hollywood a couple of months ago, following a quarrel. This episode caused considerable comment in Los Angeles newspapers, as a man said to be Howard given radical remedies for veronal poisoning at the receiving hospital and the entire story was denied next day by Howard.

When the family of John F. Howard, the salad king of Haverhill, Mass., was summering in Hollywood in 1922, Ora Carew met the son and they were married at Miss Carew's Hollywood home in December.

Their honeymoon took them to Haverhill, where Howard, 27, gave his son $20,000 to start in business with. Bride and groom signed a promissory note.

But Howard, says the star, showed decided aversion for work and instead took her to New York where they lived at the Claridge. There, she alleges, Howard embarked on a hectic career of spears and often struck her. After a time she went to San Francisco, with the erring husband following, and signed a movie contract. Her husband opposed her resumed movie career, unless she got him a contract with the same company. She says when she was unable to do this, he locked her in a room and gave her a terrific thrashing, the climax of which was her broken nose.

"I will spoil your face so no one will ever want to see you on the screen," she says he screamed. After another trip to New York, she alleges, Howard returned angry and disheartened, going on a debauch which culminated in a suicidal attempt. She

Clearing Off Lot Is Wearing on Tujungan

TUJUNGA, Aug. 27.—Scene—vacant lot covered with brush. Time—an August day, with the sun in full attendance.
Man with hoe jabs energetically at brush and weeds (for a few jabs). Man stops jabbing and mops perspiring brow, glancing reproachfully aloft at ye sun.

More jabs (half-hearted). More mopping of brow, and tying of kerchief about neck (neck very red).
Lusky-looking individual in working clothes saunters up, watches man with hoe. Man with hoe eyes him furtively, speaks: "Howdy. Looking for a job? Yeah? How much to clean the brush off this lot?"

"Seven dollars."
First man relinquishes hoe with evident relief and reclines in the shade of a large tree.

NAME HEADS FOR CLUB COMMITTEES

Officers for Various Lines Of Athletic Activity Are Chosen by Women

Added interest to the permanent organization of the Women's Athletic club is the announcement made yesterday afternoon at the meeting in Patterson Avenue park of chairmen of various activities. Chairmen named by Mrs. J. H. Toal, president, are: Mrs. E. L. Osborn, chairman of tennis; Mrs. G. W. Parker, swimming; Miss Laura Payne, golf; Dr. Harriet Franham, health; Mrs. L. L. Craven, entertainment; Mrs. Paul E. Webb, membership; Mrs. Ruth Windrem, sports; Mrs. D. Michel, publicity.

These, with the following officers, compose the board of directors: Mrs. J. H. Toal, president; Mrs. E. S. Dodds, vice-president; Mrs. C. M. Conkling, secretary; Mrs. L. L. Craven, treasurer.

Meeting in the park at the early hour, the clubwomen were put through an hour of setting up exercises by Mrs. Glen Vail, graduate of the Sargent School of Physical Education in Cambridge, Mass., who is to serve as gymnasium instructor. Later many enjoyed swimming in the park pool.

Owing to the fact that Mrs. Vail is to be out of the city Thursday and over the week-end, and that the Tuesday afternoon club is having a benefit card party Thursday afternoon, the club meeting arranged for that day has been cancelled. The next meeting will be Monday morning, September 8, at 10 o'clock, in Patterson Avenue park.

Directors to Meet
 The board of directors is to meet Thursday morning, August 28, at 12:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. J. H. Toal at 367 West Colorado street.

Plans are under way for a beach party, Wednesday, September 3, at Santa Monica. The club members will leave the Harvard High school at 10:30 o'clock. Those having automobiles are asked to take those who have not. Setting up exercises will be directed on the beach by Mrs. Vail, and later swimming will be enjoyed. All are to take bathing suits and lunch. Coffee will be served by a club committee.

ALUMNI MEET AT ANNUAL BANQUET

New Sanitarium Building Is Opened by Dinner of Former Students

The new Glendale Sanitarium building on the nearby hilltop was opened last night to receive seventy-five alumni, who returned to participate in the first annual alumni banquet and meeting ever held in the new building. Their number was augmented to 150 by members of the 1924 graduating class and members of the faculty and staff, who were in attendance at the affair.

A large table was arranged in the form of a hollow square in the banquet room. White roses, the flower of the 1924 class, were used in profusion in the table decoration.

Following the dinner hour a business meeting of the alumni was held, and the following officers elected: Mrs. Bessie Gerald, president; Mrs. Sarah Ashbaugh, vice-president; Miss Mary Adams, secretary; Mrs. Daisy D. Harris, treasurer; Miss Bessie Baker, editor of the alumni letter; Miss Irene Nelson, assistant editor of the letter.

List of Speakers

Dr. W. J. Johnson served as toastmaster during the after-dinner hour. He introduced as speakers: Dr. A. W. Truman, medical superintendent, whose subject was "Relation of the Nurse to the Message;" Mrs. Daisy D. Harris, superintendent of nurses, who spoke on "The Alumni Association, Its Aims;" Dr. H. G. Westphal, chief surgeon, whose subject was "The Ideal Nurse;" Jack Elvin, recently from South America, who spoke on "The Nurse in the Foreign Field."

Greetings of welcome were given by Miss Veda Marsh, retiring president of the alumni. Miss Leone Cadwallader, president of the 1924 class, responded. Vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Clarence Spalding, Misses Leta and Leona Fisher and James Moore.

Explains Huge Nursery Plant

G. E. MURPHY, proprietor of the Brand Boulevard Nursery, says his business has increased steadily since he first opened up here with a stock valued around $200. Now it is worth $8000 and embraces a wide variety.

Ice Company Garage Ignited by Lantern

The garage of the Tropico Ice company at 450 Fernando court caught fire at 12:25 o'clock this morning and slightly damaged three automobiles before apparatus from the Glendale fire department appeared on the scene and extinguished the flames. Chief A. H. Lankford, who was in charge of the crew, placed the damage at $50. The fire was out at 1:05 o'clock. It was said by Chief Lankford to have started when G. Gunderson, the company's night watchman, accidentally overturned a kerosene lantern while making his rounds.

In the few short months that the Brand Boulevard Nursery, 431 North Brand boulevard, has been in business in Glendale great strides have been made. G. E. Murphy, proprietor, states that when the nursery first opened, a variety of 20 plants and shrubs was offered, total stock valuation around $200. Today the stock on hand will value at around $8000 and a variety of over 150 plants and shrubs is offered for selection. This means a total of around 20,000 plants on hand.

Mr. Murphy says that most people experience hardship in selecting shrubs. They should be very carefully selected. There is one point which every nurseryman and the public closely watch in plants, that is quality. Through this one feature Mr. Murphy has built a fine and growing business, as every shrub must carefully pass this quality test before being purchased in large quantities from the wholesale nurseries and it pays to be particular, for many compliments have been passed on the high quality of the stock that is carried by Mr. Murphy.

People in decorating the exterior of their homes should use as much taste and care as the interior demands. For the exterior of the home is always first in view. Shrubbery always makes the ideal decoration, as its foliage is always green, the flowers and berries are attractive and lend color where usually it is needed. Mr. Murphy is always glad to lend every assistance in the selection of plants and shrubbery for both interior and exterior decoration. Many years of experience in this work giving him every possible advantage to co-operate with the home beautifier.

Mammoth Tomato Vine In Glendale Gardens

Eleven feet of tomatoes is the boast of H. E. Hollingsworth of 621 Kimlin drive, who has a tomato plant growing up over a trellis eleven feet high. The vine is covered with fine, large tomatoes, whose ripening by members and friends of the Hollingsworth family is being watched with eagerness.

When asked if he is a new-comer to Glendale Mr. Hollingsworth answers with a broad grin, assuring one that he has watched Glendale grow. He formerly lived on Glendale avenue, where he grew in his garden a giant sunflower, whose seed pod measured twenty-three inches in diameter.

Glendale Girl Looms As Exposition's Queen

One of the contestants who is making a strong fight for leadership in the race for the coveted position of queen of the San Fernando Valley Industrial exposition that is to be held at Burbank, September 9 to 13, is Miss Pearl Loomer, the daughter of Arthur W. Loomer, 1136 Thompson avenue, Glendale.

Miss Loomer is now up among the leaders and her Glendale friends, as well as those in other valley cities, are casting their votes for her in an effort to place her at the head of the polls.

DECIDE ON DATE FOR FORUM MEET

Committee to Prepare Plans For C. C. Gathering at Oakmont Club

Plans for the first open forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce were outlined at the weekly board meeting last night, when A. L. Ferguson was named chairman of the entertainment committee that is to prepare for the affair. The tentative date for the meeting has been set at September 15, at the Oakmont Country club, when it is expected that at least 300 people will be present to consider methods to assist in the development of Glendale. Vice-President D. H. Smith presided.

Frank Echols and S. W. Brown were added to the committee to assist Mr. Ferguson. The former chairman, W. A. Howe, asked the board to appoint a successor in his place, as his duties, he said, kept him occupied at night, and the board acceded to his request.

The entertainment committee will meet at luncheon tomorrow to make final plans for the open forum meeting.

Defense Day Plans

Dr. F. R. Gartley was appointed the official representative of the Chamber of Commerce to work with the American Legion in preparing plans for Defense Day. All the civic clubs in Glendale have been asked to co-operate in the arrangements for the Defense Day program.

A resolution was passed commending the Owl Drug company for its action in publishing an advertisement tomorrow in one of the leading Chicago papers, in an effort to counteract the unfavorable propaganda that is current in the middle west regarding California, and especially to show the prosperity that exists in this part of the state. In the map that forms part of the advertisement Glendale is shown in a conspicuous place.

Harry E. White was appointed to represent the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting to be held in Los Angeles today to protest against the proposal of the Southern Pacific company to construct a grade crossing at Bradford street and San Fernando road in Burbank. The Associate Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando valley are joining in the protest.

Trophies To Be Shown

George J. Lyons and L. H. Wilson were appointed as a sub-committee of the advertising committee to have charge of Glendale's exhibit at the San Fernando Valley Industrial exposition that is to be held in Burbank on September 9 to 13. A part of Glendale's exhibit will consist of the silver trophies that are on display at the Chamber of Commerce, and it was also decided to permit the Glendale Realty board to show these trophies at the annual convention of the California Real Estate association that meets in Pasadena in October.

The subject that will be given major consideration at next week's meeting of the board will be the proposed bond issue of $157,500 for parks in Glendale.

Truck Highway

A letter from Thomas W. Watson, chairman of the City Planning commission, told of the progress that has been made toward the laying out of the proposed truck and industrial highway from Burbank to Los Angeles harbor. It will be necessary, Mr. Watson pointed out, to connect Glendale and the industrial district that will result from the construction of the truck highway by streets crossing San Fernando road, of which there are already

FORGE NEW LINK IN STORE CHAIN

J. C. Penny Company to Open Glendale Branch on Saturday, Aug. 30

Another link in the nation-wide chain of J. C. Penny Company stores will be forged Saturday, August 30, when the doors of the Glendale store will be thrown open to the shopping public, and when the manager, R. G. Bixley, will welcome Glendaleans to the new establishment at 233 to 235 North Brand boulevard.

The Glendale branch, Mr. Bixley states, is a part of the program that has been adopted by the concern, by which close to 100 new stores are to be opened in different parts of the country during the present year.

The history of the Penny stores is one of the romances of present day business. Starting with one small store in 1902 in a little Wyoming mining town, the concern has grown until today it numbers more than 500 stores all over the country, and plans are constantly being made to expand still further, as the volume of trade justifies the expansion.

Outlines Policy

"The policy of the Penny organization is a simple one," declares Mr. Bixley. "It is that good merchandise, purchased in sufficient quantities to be sold at a moderate price and that can be turned over quickly, gives the purchaser a superior article at a low price and still provides a reasonable profit for the merchant—which is the only constructive basis for merchandising."

The personal touch is not forgotten in the Penny organization, and every effort, says Mr. Bixley, is made to have each store assume its place as an integral part of the business life of the community in which it is located, while special stress is laid on the service that must be given to the customer.

Trained Employees

Every employee who rises to leadership and authority in the Penny stores has won his way up from the bottom of the ladder. Every employee is trained under the methods that have brought the Penny concern to the front rank of American business houses, so that he is always ready to step up into the opening above when his time comes for promotion, and the system by which managers of the various branches are permitted to acquire stock in the concern makes them feel that the interest of the organization is their own personal affair.

Mr. Bixley states that he and his staff of employees will welcome the shoppers of Glendale on their opening day and will be glad to explain the methods in vogue in the Penny stores.

ELECTRIC MOTOR STOLEN

W. F. Brand, proprietor of the service station at the corner of Glendale avenue and Lexington drive, reports the theft of a three-quarters horsepower electric motor and a leather pulley belt. The motor number was 175189, he states. W. J. Royle, Glendale detective lieutenant, is working on the case.

WORKING FOR PEACE

No matter how bitterly we condemn others' methods the fact that so many people are thinking, talking and working for universal and everlasting peace in the world, is going to bear fruit. When the people get to wanting something hard enough they will get it. Public opinion is a power that nothing can resist. We, in the United States want peace. The Chicago Tribune says if it is left to the United States to provoke a war the chances are the world has seen its last battle. And surely the nations of Europe have had enough of strife for some time to come. Yet there is hatred, jealousy, envy, and greed for wealth and power in the hearts of men now as there has always been, and that is where war has its beginning.

Earnest, able, conscientious men and women who know what war is and who long for the day when it will be banished from the earth forever believe that the nation should be prepared to defend itself from the cupidity of other nations. Others just as earnest and anxious for peace think that preparing for war will bring war; that we get what we expect.

In any plans we make concerning war other nations must be taken into account, and nearly everyone has come to believe that some kind of an international court is necessary to settle the differences of nations before they become serious.

The people of the world want peace. How can we get together? Raymond Fosdick, in a recent address pleads for a modern Aristotle, someone to systematize and reduce the human chaos to a semblance of order. He points out that modern science has broken down conceptions of time and space; that there is more in common today between the United States and China, or between England and the South Sea Islands than existed a hundred years ago between the states of our Union. And then he asks what is the value of our physical conquests and our systems of transportation if we do not know how to use them wisely.

How can the people of the United States and of the world get together to end war is the one big question of today. Will a Moses, a Lincoln be raised up to lead us?

AMERICAN CIVILIZATION LEADS

Pessimists are effectually silenced by David F. Houston, cabinet member under President Wilson, in an article in Harper's Magazine, in which he says America is still in a position of leadership in all the fundamental forces, moral and idealistic as well as material, that make for a worthy civilization. The opportunity offered for the growth of the average man is the true test of civilization, he says, and America has met this test and passed with high honors.

It is significant that the wealth of this nation, the bank savings, the insurance policies, the homes, the stock of many of the large corporations are owned by the people, the wage earners, the average man.

Democracy is a comparatively new thing in the world, and if our democracy is crude, its crudeness is the result of youth and inexperience and not of the system itself. In spite of political corruption America holds out more hope for the man who wants to get ahead than any other nation in the world. Mr. Houston says:

"It seeks to give each man an opportunity to make the most of himself and the best use of his faculties; and, in fuller measure than any other, it assures him the fruits of his labor. The rapidly growing ownership of all forms of property by the masses and the widespread well-being evidence the extent of its realization of its purpose. Here the property of the individual is protected by more guarantees than anywhere else in the world. It is safeguarded not only by the Constitution, by statutes, and by courts, but also by the wide diffusion of wealth and by a degree of economic stability which nations in Europe will not approximate in generations—and, above all, by the temper and spirit of our people. The United States is today the safest investment in the world."

IS FREE VERSE PASSING?

It is now predicted that there is to be a return to the old forms of poetry. Let us hope so. A writer in The Measure says the free verse movement is the result of the popularity of Walt Whitman, and the popularity of Whitman is the result of what he had to say and not how he said it.

The watchword of the modern poet is "move on," but Art in moving on swings back and completes a circle.

It was but a few years ago the discovery was made that rhyme and meter as applied to poetry are unnecessary and antiquated, but now even some of the most insurgent verse librarians are turning back to the old and more conventional forms.

It is true that having something to say is of more importance than the manner of saying it, but we have always connected poetry with form, meter and rhythm as well as truth. Some of the modern poetry is good, but the free verse movement has given so many with nothing to say a chance to say it.

RECIPE FOR SUCCESS

Don Marquis, one of the best known and most widely read columnists in the country, says the most successful man in the world is the one who believes himself successful. It is very true that one who thinks himself a failure cannot be very much of a success, but, on the other hand, being too satisfied with achievement is a great impediment in the way of further growth and development.

The best way to achieve success is to put away doubt and discouragement, always see Success ahead, but never be satisfied with what has been accomplished; never feel that the goal we have set for ourselves has been reached.

Success means growth. Success is not the place where we stop. It is the road we take to get there. When we live for an ideal and reach that ideal, life must necessarily lose its savor, for when growth stops there is not much left to live for.

The world flyers, on their arrival in Boston, are to receive gifts of silver berry bowls as representative of Boston. Would not earthen bean pots better serve the purpose?

You have to be a monied man if you have any weight when you step on an automobile scale.

Heaven is such a desirable place. Is it because there is no marrying there?

If we don't cease work we won't cease living.

THE LATEST SICK MAN OF EUROPE

England a Liberal Giver

By DR. FRANK CRANE

According to Frederick Cunliffe-Owen, England, which has long had the reputation of being the greatest land-grabbing nation in existence, has really given away, for nothing, much territory.

He says that it may possibly be news to many Britfishers, and also their kinsfolk in the United States, that there is no empire on the face of the globe that has done so much in the way of voluntary relinquishment of overseas possessions as Great Britain.

It is timely to call attention to that fact in connection with her voluntary transfer of Jubaland to Italy. The very location and size of Jubaland was ignored by the vast majority of the 400,000,000 people who are subject to King George, yet Jubaland is a valuable tract of territory, larger than the Kingdom of Scotland, embracing some fifty thousand square miles, forming the northern part of the British colony of Kenya, in East Africa.

The territory in question lies to the southwest of the broad River Juba, which, until recently, has constituted the Anglo-Italian border line.

Lloyd George and Lord Curzon conveyed the impression that Great Britain was endeavoring to evade her obligations with regard to Jubaland at the close of the war, and this created intense bitterness in Italy and was responsible for much of the unfriendliness which Mussolini, for a time, displayed toward England at the Lausanne Congress. But when the new labor cabinet came into office at Downing street and Premier Ramsay MacDonald assumed the direction of the foreign relations of the empire, after careful consideration he took the line that the national honor of England was involved in fulfilling her obligations on the subject of her East African provinces. And he has taken now the necessary steps for turning over the Jubaland to Italy without any further quibbling.

Jubaland is only one of a long list of territories which Great Britain has voluntarily relinquished. The Philippines once belonged to England, having surrendered in 1762 to the naval forces under the command of Sir William Draper and Admiral Samuel Cornish. After a few years England found out that emigrants would not go to the Philippines on account of its distance and the treachery of the climate, and so, a few years later, without any pressure being brought to bear upon her, she deliberately, and of her own accord, restored the islands to Spain, the latter undertaking to repay the money spent on public works by Great Britain. The money was never paid, but remains owing to Great Britain to this day.

Cuba once belonged to England. It was taken by a British fleet and army under Lord Albemarle in the middle of the eighteenth century. It was afterward restored to Spain for no other reason than that the administration in Downing street did not care to retain it any longer.

Java, and in fact, all of the Dutch East Indies, were in the possession of England from 1811 until 1818, when they were voluntarily restored to Holland without any compensation whatever in return. Yet these Dutch East Indies are perhaps the richest colony of any European power.

Minorea has, at two different periods, belonged to England. It was presented to Spain by England at the time of the treaty of Amiens in 1803. Guiana was conquered by Great Britain as the result of much cost of life and treasure, but one-third of it was presented as a free gift to France in 1815, and one-third to the Netherlands.

Heligoland was given by Great Britain to Germany in return for the abandonment of Teuton claims in Zanzibar.

New Guinea, the largest island in the world, next to Australia, was formerly annexed to Queensland. But Great Britain relinquished one-half of New Guinea and it became known as Kaiser Wilhelmland. The Great War enabled the commonwealth of Australia to recover its possession and it is once more under the British flag. Samoa was abandoned by England in 1899 to Germany and was restored during the Great War also. The Samoan Archipelago is now administered by New Zealand.

Gibraltar has been offered to Spain six times, but has always been declined. Today Spain bitterly regrets her rejection of these repeated offers of Great Britain to restore to her Gibraltar, while there is no Englishman who does not congratulate himself on the good fortune which frustrated these foolish offers.

Egypt has also been given up by Great Britain and less than a quarter of a century ago Tangiers was abandoned by it.

Altogether, according to Mr. Cunliffe-Owen, England has made a good record by her generosity, but she will never give up the Suez canal or the Sudan. Each owes to her its peace, prosperity and civilization.

The Ravings Of a Grouch

The stigma of treason will always cling to the name of Benedict Arnold, but how many since his day have betrayed their country and "got away with it." I hold that anyone in any public office, from dog-catcher to president of the United States, who is not true to his trust should be placed in a class with Arnold.

I claim that every man who made capital out of the war by profiteering is as much of a traitor as Arnold. I think the men who could have fought but who stayed at home to make high wages betrayed their fellow countrymen who did go. I think the man or men who, since the war, have robbed the disabled veterans are in a class so far below Arnold that they are not to be classed with him at all.

And it is not only in wartime that treason is possible. The word traitor is only a polite term for thief and traitor. The grafter is a Judas as well as an Arnold. He would sell his soul, and does, for a few pieces of silver.

The man who makes personal gain aside from the emoluments the office is expected to pay, is a thief and a traitor. The one who accepts personal favors in return for contracts for public work is a thief and a traitor. The man who makes out of public office more than the salary he receives is a thief and a traitor.

The company by which I am employed conducts a store where stationery and office supplies are issued to the employees in the various departments as they are needed. I know a man who has made friends with the girl who gives out these supplies and thus provides his children with all the supplies they need for school. This is only petty thievery. A big corporation doesn't miss a few lead pencils, but if this man's son should grow up to be a thief he would be very much surprised and hurt.

It is those who are elected to office by the people and who then betray those whom they are sworn to trust, for graft, that I am condemning as traitors. It is not right that the name of Benedict Arnold should be down in the annals of history and these men be allowed to die forgotten.

AGED MAN SURF HERO

SEAL BEACH, Aug. 27.—A. R. Bustamento of San Bernardino proved that age is no handicap in performing heroic deeds when he placed his own life in jeopardy and rescued 2-year-old Bobbie George from drowning here recently. Mr. Bustamento, who is 81 years old, plunged in the surf and had to swim quite a distance to effect the rescue, but felt amply repaid by the broken sobs of thanks Mrs. George expressed when he placed her baby safely in her arms.

LIZZIE, HENRY LOOK ALIKE

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 27.—Unique memories will linger in the mind of Martha Potter, pretty Kansas school teacher, of her visit in southern California, especially of a near-kidnaping experience. With several friends, "Pat," as she is called, decided to enjoy the midnight fishing off Newport pier, but the sport became tiring and "Pat" slipped away for some sleep in one of the autos of the party. Martha woke up shortly after dawn in Santa Ana. She merely climbed in the wrong delivery. "Gee, I had the time of my life," "Pat" smiled.

ENGLISH FILMS SUFFER

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 27.—The British motion picture industry has suffered a material set-back as the result of the removal of the tariff on motion picture films entering England, and in consequence picture people are bound for the United States, particularly Hollywood. These facts were made known here recently by Bettie Doyle, former screen favorite in London, who arrived in Los Angeles a short time ago.

"Conditions surrounding the motion picture business in England today are worse than they have ever been," Miss Doyle said. "There is only one company—that of the Stoll Film company—now operating in London. The removal of the tariff on foreign pictures has played havoc with the British producers."

DOVE HUNTERS PLAN TRIPS

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 27.—With the opening of the dove season September, many hunters will come to Santa Barbara for a starting point for Santa Ynez valley where dove shooting among the hills is most successful. The closing of the national forests to hunters will not affect the dove hunters, it was announced.

executive committee of the Southern Pacific in January, 1913, when the Union Pacific gave up control of that system.

Since Mr. Kruttschnitt took charge of the Southern Pacific property its record has been one of continued progress. In 1912 the railroad handled a gross business of $131,525,171 and had 10,058 miles of track. At the close of 1923 the company reported an annual business of $287,204,635 and a total mileage of 11,244.

The other day Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific railroad system spent his seventieth birthday in the work to which he has given the greater portion of his life—the construction of the Southern Pacific. The day on which, according to the unwritten law of the railroad industry, an active worker may gracefully retire, saw the head of the Southern Pacific in charge of a larger system than ever before in its history.

Kruttschnitt spent the day on an inspection trip over the lines of the company. It was one of the regular trips he makes at frequent intervals to keep himself informed on every development on the property.

Kruttschnitt has spent his entire railroad career in the service of the Southern Pacific, or the systems that are now included in its lines. He is a native of New Orleans, a graduate of Washington and Lee university, and for five years taught school in McDonough school at Baltimore, Md.

It was not until 1878, when he was 24 years of age, that he entered the employ of the Louisiana & Texas Railroad company and became an engineer in charge of construction. On the completion of that line, which was eventually to become a part of the Southern Pacific, he became roadmaster, and then advanced until he became chairman of the board and date, F. W. Mixer of Exeter, had won over C. W. Cleary, one of the outspoken anti-administration leaders of the lower house.

In San Mateo county an administration victory was conceded, while in Santa Clara county the result was so close an official count may be required to determine the result. In Shasta county the administration forces were victorious in the assembly fight.

The ninth assembly district, comprising Placer and Nevada counties, gave Mrs. Cora Woodbridge, anti-administration legislator almost a two to one lead over J. A. Teagarden, with 2,049 to 1,174. Ivan H. Parker had 1,056 votes.

Incomplete returns from the fifth assembly district comprising Glenn, Colusa and Tehama counties, gave Bernard, also an anti-administration Republican, a big lead over his opponent.

In the seventh assembly district, taking in Butte county, Charles Duell, Richardson candidate, conceded the Republican nomination to Gerald J. Chalmers, anti-administration candidate. Duell, however, maintained a lead of 100 over his nearest opponent on the Democratic ticket.

The eighth assembly district nomination was a big walk-away for Fred B. Noyes, Richardson adherent, he having more than a four to one majority over Lydia Lawhead.

Figures on Supervisors. The unofficial returns in the race for supervisor of the Fifth district, of which Glendale is a part, shows: Henry W. Wright, 2028; O. B. Manchester, 1494; Charles C. Fife, 525. Under the state election laws, it will be necessary for Supervisor Wright, the present supervisor from this district, to get a majority of the votes cast for supervisor to get a place on the ticket in the November election.

Sewer Bond Bids Are Advertised by Council

upon at that hour they will be publicly opened and read.

Copies of the notice of sale will go out tonight by aeroplane mail, to eastern bond markets, according to A. J. Van Wie, city clerk. The notice of sale sets forth that the bonds will be dated March 1, 1924, and will bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. Forty of the bonds will be retired March 1, 1925, and seventeen additional bonds will be retired March 1 of each successive year, the last seventeen bonds of the issue being retired March 1, 1961. The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and no bids will be accepted for less than par and accrued interest. All bonds will be sold for cash, the notice states.

A letter has been received by Mr. Van Wie from R. F. Goudy of Sacramento, resident engineer of the California State Board of Health.

"This is to acknowledge receipt of application for permit to construct sewers and make connections with the Los Angeles sewer system. As soon as plans are received, this matter will be put before the State Board of Health."

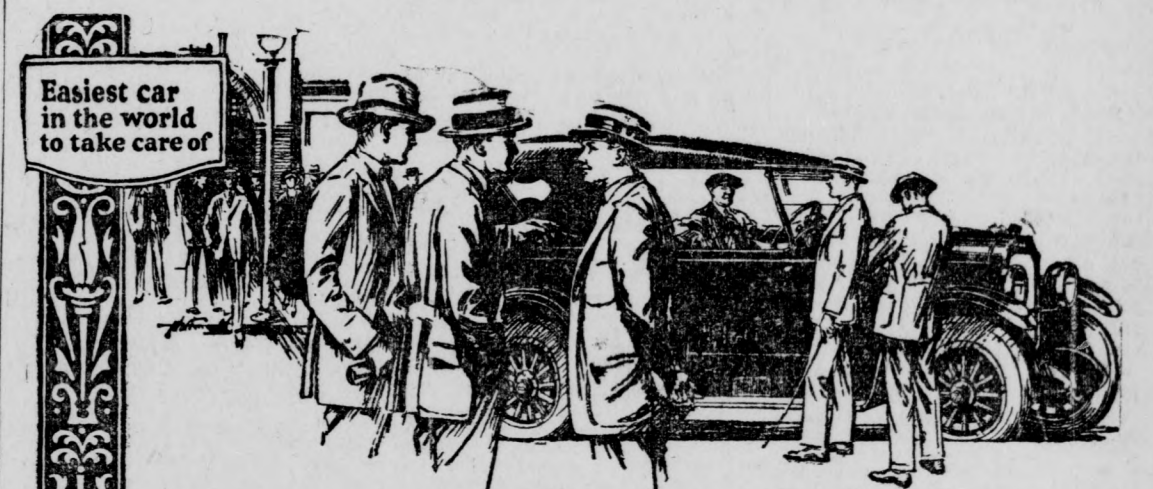

Burns & McDonnell, the sewer engineers retained by the city of Glendale to supervise the engineering features of the sewer system, are reported to be in conjunction on these plans, in conjunction with Benjamin F. Dupuy, Glendale city engineer, and the Los Angeles engineering department.

As soon as the $652,000 issue of bonds has been sold and the money received into the city treasury, bids for the work will be advertised and the contracts let, declares Virgil B. Relative stability in production of important minerals, petroleum and flour was reported. Curious Crowds... that ask

"How Does That 'One-Shot' Lubrication System Work?"

IT is not strange that owners of the 1925 Cleveland Six are being actually stopped on the street.

The fame of the "One-Shot" Lubrication System is spreading with wildfire speed—for this exclusive feature of the 1925 Cleveland Six does away with the grimy task of greasing the car by hand.

Simply by stepping on a plunger, you lubricate all moving chassis parts. Whenever a squeak develops—down goes the plunger and the squeak is silenced. No more neglected chassis lubrication with its rattles and repair bills. No more leaving the car for half a day to have it properly greased. You should see this marvelous feature. And you yourself should test the

HEAT PROSTRATION—No. 3

Heat exhaustion is defined by Tice as "a disturbance of the heat mechanism of the body due to excessive heat in an atmosphere with a high degree of humidity." It is characterized by collapse, with or without a rise in body temperature. This disturbance of the heat regulation of the body causes retention of toxic products in the body and the symptoms of the heat exhaustion are due to the poisoning of these retained products. Some scientists believe that heat exhaustion is a form of acidosis.

You can see from this that a body already poisoned from chronic organic diseases, or from overeating or overdrinking, alcohol or nicotine, would be more apt to succumb to heat exhaustion. (However, healthy individuals under too great muscular exertion in the heat, may also be affected.) Heat exhaustion is not infrequently experienced by cooks, stokers, laundry workers, and so forth, who have to work for long periods in superheated atmospheres.

In yesterday's paper, I explained how a high humidity (a high degree of moisture in the air) lessened the evaporation of the perspiration from the body. Therefore, it retards the chief method of cooling the body. But humidity is not the only cause of heat exhaustion. If that were so, we would all suffer from this disorder in climates where the humidity is high. The other factors predisposing to heat exhaustion I have spoken of in the beginning of the article.

Whether the perspiration is wholly evaporated or not, free perspiration is one of the chief factors of heat loss. The amount of perspiration depends upon the amount of water in the body. Under normal conditions, there is a large reserve of water in the muscles and in free perspiration this water is drawn upon and not that from the blood. This gives a hint to one of the factors of safety in hot weather—drink large amounts of water. Twelve to 15 glasses during the day is not too much, according to Tice. And don't overeat, nor eat salty foods, so the body won't need to retain so much water.

The symptoms of heat exhaustion come on suddenly but there may be a general depression, dizziness, nausea, and vomiting before unconsciousness. Sometimes there are convulsions. The body temperature may be raised very high or it may be lowered. Most often it becomes very high. If the attack is severe, it may leave permanent results.

A little resume of the Preventive Measures—Eat very little concentrated protein such as in meat, fish and egg whites. Make the diet consist largely of the vegetables, fruits and dairy products (the non-acid forming foods). Eat more potatoes and less bread (also because non-acid). Drink lots of water. Take frequent cold baths. Use electric fans. Wear few and lightweight clothes. Do as little work as possible during the day.

Treatment:—If possible, place the patient in a tub of ice water for 10 to 30 minutes, rubbing him constantly. The temperature should be taken by rectum, often, and when it is down to 102 degrees, the patient should be put in bed, and ice kept to the head and a towel dipped in ice water around his neck. A physician must be called because stimulation may be necessary and heat prostration is a serious condition. If a tub of water is not available, rubbing the patient with ice water is the next best.

Miss Painter was attended by her sister, Miss Evelyn Painter, as maid of honor, who wore a nile green taffeta and georgette frock and carried an arm bouquet of coral roses and ferns.

Gale Forecast as Aviators Prepare for Long Hop To Indian Harbor

By DAVIS J. WALSH

For International News Service. ON BOARD U. S. CRUISER RICHMOND, Aug. 27 (by wire)—Forecasts of a northeast gale today made it unlikely that the United States army "round-the-world flyers would be able to hop off tomorrow morning on the 555-mile leg of their historic air journey from Iquitos to Indian Harbor, Labrador.

If the weather forecast proves true, the American aviators—Lieutenant Lowell Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson—would be compelled to buck a gale, whereas they need every advantage in their favor to make the long jump back to the mainland of the North American continent.

Open Water Flight

The leg of the journey to Indian Harbor is the second longest open water hop of the world flight.

"I regard the completion of the next jump as a surety of success for the entire undertaking if success is not already assured," said Lieutenant Commander Leighton, aviation officers. "This jump is not particularly difficult, although a fog is prevalent. I do not blame the flyers for not taking any chances. They have already accomplished too much to do that."

CAPITAL AWAITS VISIT OF PRINCE

Heir to British Throne to Be President's Guest at Informal Luncheon

American embassy at London when Major Solbert was attached to the embassy as military attache, consequently, in the persons of the president's representatives, the prince will renew an acquaintanceship dating over a period of several years.

Simple Ceremony

The extremely simple and unostentatious reception given the prince, who, on his former visit to Washington, was greatly feted, follows closely the desires of the royal visitor, who is very anxious to escape the "rigors" of state ceremony. His visit to the United States was brought about entirely by reason of his interest in the international polo games, and he is accepting no invitations, public or private. The international matches will be played September 6, 9 and 13, and upon the conclusion of the series the prince will proceed to his ranch at Calgary, Canada.

One lone attache and a small detail of servants maintain a gloomy "summer state" at the British embassy quarters here. The presence of the heir to the British crown will not induce any change whatever in this somber situation.

Had the British prince arrived "in state" the entire embassy personnel, happily established in summer quarters in the north, would have hurried back to prepare a formal program. As things stand, the usual string pulling, the scheming and contriving for a part in the fetes induced by the visit of so notable and distinguished a foreign guest, will be averted. Consideration for the recent bereavement of the White House family, no less than distaste for form and ceremony, also had a part to play in the decision of his royal highness to make his return visit to the American capital notable chiefly by his absence of ceremony.

Honors at Capital

While Washington will have but a fleeting glimpse of the royal visitor, the citizenship of the capital will do him all the honor that floating bunting and crowded thoroughfares can accomplish. The uncertainty as to the exact hour of the arrival of the special train bringing the prince and the little company who will make the journey with him, will prevent any special celebration. However, this being the special season of the "summer tripper" the parks and avenues adjacent to the White House will have their usual throng of sightseers considerably increased and it is entirely unlikely that the big White House limousine bearing the president's guest to the White House will "get past" without some sort of informal demonstration.

"The coming visit of the prince recalls the last visit to Washington. Arriving when the late President Wilson was gradually coming out of the period of entire isolation into which his illness plunged him, the prince made a call of ceremony at the White House and had tea with Mrs. Wilson. Expressing his disappointment at not meeting the president, ceremony was waived and the royal visitor made a bedside call upon Mr. Wilson.

"On the contrary," Hilary protested, eagerly, "we get into the habit of thinking money is wonderful because there are just a few things that we must have, or die, and at present people have to buy them. Food, and shelter, and clothes—that's all. But the real things, service, and sharing, and working for each other, and love—that's life."

"And can't rich people love each other?" Craig asked, with the air of cornering her.

"No," Hilary answered calmly. "I don't think they can, not as poor people do, anyway. They don't have the same anxieties, the same sacrifices, or the same need for actually working for each other. Husbands and wives live one life, on a small salary, they need each other. But how much does a woman like Rose West need Walter? Not at all."

"Then you think people are happier slaving, and starving, and sitting up nights with sick children, and worrying over bills, than others who can give their children nurses and comfort and decent educations?" Craig asked.

"Well, I don't quite understand that," Hilary answered, a little doubtfully. "But I know this, she added, animatedly, "that when a woman gets up a Sunday dinner, and cleans all the children, and fixes the house, and makes the gravy the last minute, there is—there is something about it that makes it much more fun! I love to remember the first years after Father died, when Dora and I often used to wonder where shoe money was coming from, and when—when I remember, Butterfly?—we used often to bring back branches of dead wood, from Sunday walks, for the stove. Dora, do you remember the day we were absolutely loaded with wood—we kept piling it on to each other, Craig, and we were laughing like a pair of maniacs!—and we saw Cutler White and some girls from Philadelphia coming along—"

"I remember!" Dora said, with bright, conscious color in her face and an involuntary glance at the maid who came in with the rolls. "I think you're entirely right, Hilary," the elder Mrs. Spaulding said, unexpectedly, looking sternly through her glasses at the rolls. "Bring me a piece of toasted brown bread, Banks," she said majestically. "No wonder young Americans have no constitutions!" she interpolated dispassionately. "Coffee and hot pulp for the first meal of the day! Yes, Hilary, you're entirely right," she resumed. "I was speaking of that very same thing to Craig's father a few weeks ago. I reminded him of our early days, when our first baby came." Mrs. Spaulding did not even sigh at the memory of the little daughter she had lost more than thirty years before, but for a moment her fine gray eyes stared into space. "Every detail of that little flat, of the baby's little double-gowns, I can remember to this moment," she went on.

"The little meals we ate, the street-cars we rode upon, the bakeries where I bought bread—sometimes I can hardly bear to recall them, because all that was so vital and so wonderful to us both. But when Rodney began to make money, and this boy was born," she finished, with a sharp glance at Craig through her glasses, "we lived in handsome apartments, we went to California for a vacation, to Alaska, to Europe—all that's just blank! I've forgotten it, just as we always forget what comes too easily to us!"

Craig looked at her in surprise; she did not often favor them with anything so closely approaching sentiment. Now she sipped her scalding coffee with her usual calm, determined air, and helped herself firmly to omelette.

She had unexpectedly returned from France a few days before, and planned to go back within another week. But meanwhile her visit was most timely, had fallen in delightfully with the reformed routine of the household. She had found Butterfly at her sweetest and simplest; beaming from between Hilary and Craig on the pier, as the big vessel was warped into her dock, looking like a charming doll in her wide-brimmed hat and muffled white furs, and between Hilary and the elderly woman a friendship of several years' standing bid fair now to ripen into something more. Mrs. Spaulding sat erect, and apparently aloof, reading through her gold-rimmed and jeweled lorgnette, in the evenings, when Butterfly and Hilary rambled through one scrap of beautiful music after another, at the piano, but she did not miss one note, or miss the pretty picture of the sisters.

Views and Theatres News Notes From Studios

Compiled by Members of The Evening News Staff

News of "The Stampede" is spreading fast, according to J. A. Menard, manager of Murphy's Comedians, who are presenting this red-blooded western drama nightly, at their tent theatre on the corner of Central avenue and Stocker street, Casa Verdugo.

It is a play that recalls the old west, when cowboys were more numerous on the plains than they are in the movies now. Not only is the action rapid, the laughs are almost continuous. Such plays as this are a real treat.

"The Stampede" is bound to prove one of the most popular of the long line of successful plays presented by these players, and Horace Murphy, stage manager, deserves no little credit for the splendid cast he has assembled for the production. The curtain rises nightly at 8 o'clock.

"Yes, I know she has!" he answered, quickly, trying not to look conscious.

"Very remarkable girl," Mrs. Spaulding said, eyeing him thoughtfully. "How did it happen you never admired her, Craig?"

"I don't know," he said. "I hope when she marries it'll be a man worthy of her," he added, to break a possible pause.

"Mark my words," Mrs. Spaulding remarked, impressively, "When that girl marries, she'll marry well, it won't matter who the man is! She'll make him! She could marry Banks, here, and he'd turn out to have some unexpected genius for invention, or surgery, or something! Talking about you," she said, giving Hilary's hand a pat with her own square, firm hand, as Hilary sat down beside her.

"Craig," Hilary said, eagerly, "don't you truly think that Butterfly shows improvement already, even after only three lessons with Von Mandescheid? I do, I think he's marvellous! You will keep her at it, won't you? When I've gone home?"

Kronski and Von Mandescheid had dined with the Spauldings ten days before. Kronski in rather an irritable and unresponsive mood at first, and the old conductor obviously ill at ease in the strangeness of a large American home. But both had been soothed at finding a table set only for six, and the evening had ended felicitously with music, and music, and more music. Hilary in her element, and guiding and inspiring them all. She and Craig had gone out to forage for cold meat and rye bread and coffee at 12 o'clock, and her companionable chatter, her straightforward, busy efficiency, and her pretty howlingly anxieties to have everything right had quite warmed Craig's heart, in the kitchen and pantry that were almost an unknown region to him.

After this, Kronski had departed for his cross-country tour, and Butterfly had settled down for work in good earnest with Von Mandescheid. All this was tremendously satisfying to Hilary; her bright mood of satisfaction with life deepened and strengthened with the pleasant crisp winter days, and the arrival of Craig's mother seemed only one more tie in Butterfly's new domestic role.

"But I don't see why you should go back to that Mount Holly place, Hilary," Mrs. Spaulding protested now, seriously. "That's what we tell her! Butterfly added, affectionately, "If she had any spunk at all, I don't like to travel alone, and it would do her good. How long since you were in Paris, Hilary?" she asked, calmly.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE ROCKING CHAIR

"You won't go out adventuring in all this rain, will you?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy of the bunny rabbit gentleman, who was sitting in his driftwood bungalow at the seashore one morning.

"No, I think not," answered Mr. Longears, pressing his pink, twinkling nose flat against the glass of the window, as if to see whether or not any raindrops would fall on it—on his nose, I mean. "It is quite too wet to go adventuring. My rheumatism would hurt. I shall stay home with you today, Janie. But I wish I had something to do to keep busy."

"Why not fix the rocking chair?" asked the muskrat lady.

"What rocking chair?" asked the rabbit uncle.

"The one with the big back," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "It needs polishing, for it is as dusty as an old coal bin. I would put on some furniture polish and shine the chair up myself, but I am going to make a seaweed pie."

"Oh, by all means, make the pie!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I will polish the chair for you most gladly."

So, whistling a merry little tune about a pussy cat whose toes would make her stumble on her nose, Uncle Wiggily got the bottle of red furniture polish, some rags and set to work to shine up the old rocking chair with the big back.

"I'm glad he has something to do to keep him busy and out of my kitchen," thought Nurse Jane, as she began making the seaweed pie.

Uncle Wiggily put a little of the red furniture polish on a rag and rubbed it on the rocking chair. The dull wood became bright and shining at once and then the rabbit, taking a dry cloth, began to polish the chair.

"Now, while he was doing this the bad old Bob Cat, with his silly little tail, crept along the seashore beach. He had heard that Uncle Wiggily was spending part of his vacation at the shore.

"I'll go down there and make sure of this myself," growled the Bob Cat. "If he is there I'll nibble him—I'll scratch his ears!"

So the Bob Cat reached the driftwood bungalow just as Uncle Wiggily was polishing the back of the rocking chair.

"Ah, this is a good time to catch him," snarled the Bob Cat, and into the bungalow he slipped. His padded paws made a slithering sound on the floor, and Uncle Wiggily looked up.

"What are you doing?" growled the Bob Cat.

"I am rubbing the back of this chair," answered Uncle Wiggily politely. "What do you want, Mr. Bob Cat?"

"I came here to nibble you and scratch your ears!" howled the bad chap, flipping his silly little tail.

Uncle Wiggily thought quickly. He just laid to with the Bob Cat, catching him. And, then the rabbit said:

"Wouldn't you like your back rubbed and polished, Mr. Bob Cat, before you nibble me? Wouldn't you?"

"Yes," snapped the Bob Cat. "I would! Go ahead—do it!"

For if there was one thing he liked more than another, it was to have his back rubbed and gently scratched.

But do you think Uncle Wiggily rubbed the Bob Cat's back gently? Indeed, he didn't! All of a sudden the bunny gentleman took a piece of sandpaper he had been using to get some spots off the rocking chair, and with the sandpaper the rabbit rubbed and scratched the back of the Bob Cat so hard that the bad chap cried in pain.

"Oh, wowchie! Wow!" howled the Bob Cat. "Oh, how you hurt my back!" And away he ran, taking with him his silly little tail.

Then the bunny laughed and finished polishing the rocker, and the sun came out shining so he could play on the sand.

And, if the bathroom sponge will lend the goldfish an umbrella when it goes in bathing with the fountain pen, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Bunty's broom.

RYAN RAIDS ARE TALK OF STREET

Third Generation of Family
Stirs Money Kings by Stock Operations

By ROWLAND WOOD
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Once more, for the third generation, the name of Ryan has been associated in Wall street with a sky-rocketing stock.

Twenty years ago the talk of the street was Thomas Fortune Ryan and his spectacular adventures which enabled him to retire in 1908 many times a millionaire. Three years ago it was Allan A. Ryan, old Thomas Fortune's son, who ran his fortune up to $35,000,000 only to be battered into bankruptcy by the street for staging his historic corner in Stutz Motors.

And today it is Allan A. Ryan, Jr., a chip off the old block who has them all talking. Just out of Yale, where he was graduated with high honors, young Ryan has been a full fledged trader in the street but ten days. But in that time his operations on the curb exchange, where he started in a small way, are credited with having sent the price of Film Inspection Machine, hitherto a most sedate little stock, up from $4 to $9 a share. Young Ryan, they say in the street, has been snapping up every share of Film Inspection that has been offered on the curb—feeding some of it back into the market, it is assumed, to register a profit and to keep his holdings from getting unwieldy.

Silent Trader
Whether he is buying for himself or for a client is not generally known, for young Ryan has learned at least one thing about market operation—how to keep one's lips tightly sealed. Whether he will make a killing in this stock also is as yet unknown. It's one thing—as any trader in the street, including his father, will tell him—to run up a big profit on paper. It's another thing to cash that profit in before the market collapses under your selling.

The whole point to the campaign in Film Inspection, as old traders see it, is that it marks young Allan's bow to the bulls and bears. And the bulls and bears are keenly interested in seeing whether young Allan is going to follow in his father's footsteps and "buck" the street itself—in which case he is likely to get in very, very bad—or whether he is going to follow more closely in the path laid down by his grandfather, who made his pile and was allowed to get away with it, because he SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 27.—The whole world knows of the anti-Volstead squadron that lubricates New York by means of submarines, hydroplanes and high powered motor boats. The whole world does not know that Canada also has an Atlantic rum fleet. Many great waves beat on the rugged coasts of Cape Breton but no wild nor easter as wild and lawless as the waves of rum. The writer has recently stood on the very crest of these rum breakers and watched them foam shorewards into hundreds of smugglers' coves.

A glance at a map will show at once that Cape Breton is ideally adapted to pluck bottles from the sea. It is the hand of which the rest of Nova Scotia is the arm and the Straits of Canso the wrist. It runs out to sea in innumerable long headlands like eager, beckoning fingers, or perhaps it would be better to say that Cape Breton, Cape Percy, Point Aconie, Cape Smoky and Cape North are tongues—quivering and thirsty tongues.

Revenue Cutters Give Battle
Off every headland is some vessel of the fleet. It needs little magic to summon spirits from the vasty deep. The rustle of bills at the three-mile limit is all that is required to lure kegs and cases from the holds of the rum boats into the holds of the rum runners. To serve as barriers against this tidal wave the dominion government has three revenue cutters, the largest of which is the Sagamore, commanded by Captain Peters. These watchdogs of the customs, if they took their eyes or their telescopes from the land, would realize in a moment that they are not dykes but force behind "Film Inspection?" he was asked.

"No sir—I don't know anything about it—really."

And the fledgeling Ryan excused himself politely and hurried away. Maybe to talk over the doings of the day with his father. Maybe with his grandfather.

For although old Thomas Fortune and his son Allan have not spoken since the former's marriage a few days after the death of Allan Ryan's mother, young Allan is on the best of terms with both. Both are watching with interest his foray into the street.

SOLDIER IS DYING
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—Wesley Woodfork, a soldier, is dying in a hospital here with two wounds in the abdomen as the result of a quarrel yesterday with F. G. Hudson, Nogales, Ariz., soldier.
